

[REAL WEDDINGS]

Preparations and Traditions

To prepare for the big day, the couple put together two rehearsal dinners with 50 guests, which was held at the elegant The White Rabbit and Au Petit Salut restaurants.

To keep with traditions, the couple also had a day dedicated to the customary tea ceremony with 80 of their relatives, which was held at Four Seasons Hotel, Singapore,

Focusing on the theme of Traditional Chinese, the couple had a red and gold theme and a sumptuous spread of Chinese cuisine served for lunch. For the declaration of their vows, the couple wanted to have an Anglican solemnisation at St. George's Church followed by a reception in a traditional English style marquee. With that in mind, they set up a large marquee at Tanglin Fields to accommodate the 700 guests. That day, both venues were decked out in white hydrangeas, phalaenopsis orchids white freesias, green customas, amaranthus, white matthiola and gorgeous white and ivory roses for a luscious English Garden ambience. And lending elegance to the whole reception was a string quartet that played romantic tunes for the blissful couple.

The blissful newly-weds

The large marquee at Tanglin Fields

Lovely bridesmaids strike a pose